

REACH FUTURE CONSTRUCTION PROFESSIONALS!

Coming in October 2009:

Construction Career Days magazine

Looking to grow your business or organization? McGraw-Hill is producing the official publication for Colorado Construction Careers (CCD) 2009. The CCD program provides students with hands-on exposure to the diverse and exciting careers and training opportunities offered by the design and construction industry.

Magazine distribution will include high school counselors across the state, the entire readership of Colorado Construction magazine and the approximate 2000 high school aged attendees of this year's event. Additional distribution will go to area associations and job fairs.

This publication will include information for students from the A/E/C industry, education programs, from trade schools, colleges and universities as well as information from professional associations, industry training programs and skilled trade unions. If you are involved in education, training or hiring talent, call us to plan your advertisement today.
